CTA riders who use electronics are most satisfied customers

Chicago Tribune

They may annoy their seatmates, but "I" riders who talk on cell phones, tap out e-mails or listen to music are among the most satisfied CTA customers and likely to keep using the service, according to a new study.

For fast-paced urbanites, it all comes down to making the best use of time while commuting, and for many people that means punching up electronics to stay connected to the world outside, Northwestern University researchers found. Transit agencies who are behind the curve should take notice, they added.

Many of the CTA train riders polled said they want the freedom to be productive or entertained during their commutes, as they would be if driving their own personal vehicles. Still other riders said they depend on iPods and other devices as self-defense tools to avoid contact with strangers, according to the study, which was based on a scientific survey of 336 CTA Red Line and Purple Line riders as well as observing the behavior of 400 train riders.

Whatever the reasons, the ability to use communication and information technologies in CTA subways and across the 224-mile rail system is as important to at least half of CTA riders as it is to get to their destination as quickly as possible, according to the results of the study, titled "Private Time on Public Transit." Here are some more of the findings.

WHAT ARE PEOPLE READING?

Visit redeyechicago.com/goingpublic for a look at "Rider's Digest," a feature devoted to what people are reading on the CTA.

Passing time

People who read books and newspapers rate the CTA as a better use of their time than commuters who don't read during their trip. This group tended to be older.

What matters most ...

To younger commuters in the survey, the option to maintain a constant electronic lifeline was key to their CTA approval rating. It ranked even higher than whether their train was operating on time.

Percentage of CTA train customers who use their cell phones while riding.

"Giving the customer the ability to either text or receive an urgent emergency call while they are traveling on the system is what people expect."

CTA president
Rich Rodriguez.

CHRIS WALKER / TRIBUNE

"We found that connected people—people who are using these devices—are more satisfied generally with the level of CTA service. Overall, the level of satisfaction was quite high, almost 4 on a 5-point scale on average."

Not so friendly with Facebook

Jimmy Kimmel wants to make your online experience more manageable. The late-night talk show host has officially declared Wednesday National UnFriend Day, which he describes as a day when Facebook users should eliminate the "friend fat" and say goodbye to the people you barely know who keep asking "which Harry Potter character you are."

Now this isn't the first time a movement to unfriend on Facebook has come up, but it might be the most widely organized. While Kimmel is no Conan, he's got a pretty big voice.

Let's think about this for a minute. We all have random Facebook friends whom we've welcomed aboard the friend wagon at one time or another. Maybe you were busy and just weren't thinking or maybe you didn't have the heart to reject an acquaintance.

So should you participate? Well, it depends.

Participate if:

- » You have thousands of friends and have no idea who half of them are.
- » You have 500 friends and 490 of them are old high school enemies you decided to grant a second chance 10 years later.
- » You do whatever Jimmy Kimmel says.

Don't participate if:

- » You are just trying to organize. While Facebook's privacy settings are far from easy to navigate, there are myriad ways to separate the close friends from the Christmas card-only crowd.
- » You use Facebook as your address book and don't want to lose important contacts. Again, see above for privacy settings.
- » You love knowing every time someone on Farmville milks a cow or seeds the crops. If that's you, you have more important issues that Kimmel probably can't help with.

I know how this National UnFriend Day is going to play out. We'll see it talked about on every social media blog and the hashtags #NationalUnFriendDay or #NUFD will bring down Twitter. People will boast about how they have 10 friends and make fun of the people who are nearing the 5,000 friend limit.

My advice: Keep your privacy settings updated, don't open the Facebook door and all your personal information to people you don't know and add Kimmel as a friend on Facebook. That last one is just for fun.

What's your friend situation on Facebook? Tweet me, poke me—just tell me. But whatever you do, please don't unfriend me.

'THIS IS THE LAST STOP'

For deportees, Broadview detention center may be their final glimpse of life in America

By Georgia Garvey

REDEYE

On both sides of the barbed wire at the Broadview detention center, people wait.

There's a bite in the early-morning air, and men and women sit in cars, windows cracked and engines running. What they're awaiting—dreading, often—can be the culmination of years' worth of court hearings and bureaucracy: the deportation of their loved ones.

"I wanted him to see his son before he left," said Jessica Vargas, as she rocked 7-week-old Abel, her son with Luis Diaz Flores, a 19-year-old man on his way to be deported to Mexico.

Tears stream down her face. She'd been told to arrive between 6 and 8 a.m., she said, to visit briefly with her boyfriend. But when she arrived at 5:45 a.m., Vargas was told she was too late. "People who are here [illegally], they shouldn't be here. I understand that they don't have papers and stuff, but he's doing something. He has a family here. He's working. He's not doing anything wrong."

Sometimes the soon-to-be deported are leaving the facility—just 20 minutes outside of Chicago—to go to far-away nations, places where they don't know many people and barely speak the language. Other times, they're going home, to family they just recently left.

But in every Illinois case, the deportees will visit the Broadview detention center, a staging house that will be their last stop before boarding a plane at O'Hare out of the U.S. With the immigration debate boiling over, and the federal government recently deciding to challenge a hot-button Arizona law, plenty of action takes place practically in Chicago's backyard at Broadview, a short drive from the Loop.

The Department of Homeland Security recently announced a record-breaking year for deportations in the country—392,000 in fiscal year 2010. The previous year also set a record, according to Department of Homeland Security Secretary Janet Napolitano.

Napolitano said the increase in deportations is evidence the Obama administration "takes very seriously the responsibility to enforce the borders and the responsibility to enforce immigration laws."

All Chicagoans deported in the immigration crackdown will make their way through that small brick building in Broadview, a detention and staging facility that serves a four-state enforcement region that includes Illinois.

The DHS estimates 62 percent of those living in the country without legal status are from Mexico and reports that the majority of deportations are of Mexicans. At Broadview, some are returning to Jordan, Guatemala, Honduras, even Cuba.

Vargas brought to the Broadview detention center a packet of money and a handwritten letter to give her boyfriend, Flores, before he returned to Mexico, a country he hadn't visited since he was 5 years old, she said. Vargas, 20, said Flores didn't know anyone in the country other than grandparents he hadn't seen since he'd left.

"It's been so hard," she said, sobbing, as she described last seeing her boyfriend as he left their Elgin home for his job one morning. He was picked up in a traffic stop, she said, and found not to have a driver's license. "He had told me that he wanted to get married."

Sister JoAnn Persch, a nun who is a member of the Sisters of Mercy, hears tales such as Vargas's often, and sees many aspects of the deportation process. Persch visits immigration detainees in the McHenry County Jail—one of the three locations in the state where those accused of being in the country illegally are held—and also helps spearhead a prayer vigil Friday mornings as the deported are bused away from Broadview.

"You can't help but being caught up in their story," Persch said one recent morning on the sidewalk in front of Broadview, the American flag flying overhead.

It can be tough to find the Broadview detention center. Right off I-290, it's tucked away in an industrial park, with no number or name on the front of the building. But a few key hints betray its purpose: the barbed wire atop a fence blacked out with plastic covering, the roving cameras fixed on entrances and exits. The occasional sedan with tinted windows that zips in and out of the gate, which seems to open just for the perfect amount of time to admit the car, closing quickly behind it.

Inside, the atmosphere is more institutional, like a secure hospital ward. In rooms, behind the lock and key, men peek out from windows.

Sometimes they're shackled, two-by-two, at foot and hand, facing one of the walls in a corridor. Other times, they lie on molded plastic chairs, covered in grey felt blankets. More often than not, they're waiting, to get their one free three-minute phone call or to contact the consulate of their country of origin.

They wait, ultimately, to step onto the white bus with blackened windows that will take them to the largest airport in Chicago, where they'll be part of the millions who fly through O'Hare each year, according to the U.S. Bureau of Transportation Statistics.

BY THE NUMBERS

These are some of the figures that help shape the debate on illegal immigration in the U.S., Chicago and at the detention center in Broadview.

It would take someone six hours to drive from Chicago to the Tri-County Detention Center in Ullin, Ill. The other two places in Illinois where immigrants in Department of Homeland Security custody can be detained are the Jefferson County Jail in Mount Vernon and the McHenry County Jail in Woodstock.

Those living in the U.S. illegally, even those brought to the country as children, cannot apply for citizenship, according to U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services spokeswoman Marilu Cabrera. Those who are caught or admit living in the U.S. illegally are barred from re-entry for three to five years, she said.

Protesters hold a vigil as a bus carrying detainees leaves the Broadview detention center. E. JASON WAMBSGANS/ TRIBUNE

Sometimes they're convicted criminals, nabbed when law enforcement checked their immigration status while they were in prison. Other times, they were picked up on minor traffic issues. They can be fugitives from Immigration and Customs Enforcement or legal residents whose status is being challenged by the government.

"This is the last stop before [the detainees] go home and they're free," said Sylvia Bonaccorsi-Manno, an Immigration and Customs Enforcement official, adding they rarely cause trouble. "It's the end of their journey, not the beginning."

In front of Broadview on Fridays, dozens gather to pray and watch as the buses take the deportees away. When the bus stops, the men and women at the vigil turn and wave goodbye, sometimes raising a fist in solidarity or flashing a peace sign of hope.

"It was really, really eye-opening," said high school student Julia Webb, 17, of Highland Park, who watched deportations last summer with Or Tzedek, a Jewish youth program. "It was just horrible to watch. These are people, people like you and me." GGARVEY@TRIBUNE.COM

There are two flights each week to the Mexican border from O'Hare, according to Gail Montenegro, spokeswoman for ICE, with about 120 total seats available on each plane. Some who are deported from the U.S. are on commercial or charter flights, especially if they're being deported to far-flung nations.

There are three locations in the Southwest where ICE deportation flights from O'Hare will land: Nogales, Ariz., El Paso and Harlingen, Tex., according to ICE officials. After arriving, deportees will be driven across the border and released.

There are an estimated 10.8 million undocumented people living in the U.S., the Department of Homeland Security estimated in a report released in January.

Anywhere from 60 to 100 people are processed daily at the detention center in Broadview, according to Immigration and Customs Enforcement officials. Some are being processed into the detention system, and others are leaving it (to be deported or released). LENNY GILMORE/REDEYE

Four of the six states in the immigration enforcement region—Indiana, Kentucky, Wisconsin and Illinois—send their detainees through Broadview. Here, a man rests in one of the waiting rooms while being processed. LENNY GILMORE/REDEYE

Elena Segura, Director of the Office of Immigrant Affairs for the Archdiocese of Chicago, frequently attends Friday morning prayer vigils at the detention center, often as something of an unofficial liaison for family members of detainees. She dispenses advice on anything from parking to the Mexican consulate.

Mayoral race grows

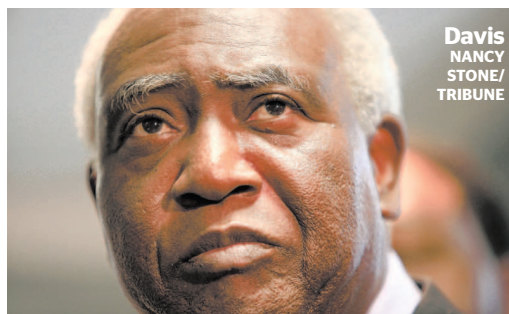

Chicago Tribune

Two prominent African-American elected officials launched their candidacies for Chicago mayor within hours of each other Sunday despite weeks of behind-the-scenes wrangling by some black leaders to unite behind a single candidate.

Veteran West Side U.S. Rep. Danny Davis and state Sen. James Meeks, who is pastor of a massive South Side church, each declared at rallies they would represent all areas of the city if elected. But the close timing of the announcements served to emphasize the rivalry between political factions representing those sections of the city.

Some black aldermen, ministers and businessmen had sought to select a "consensus" candidate in an attempt to unify African-Americans behind a single candidate. Davis was chosen over Meeks and former U.S. Sen. Carol Moseley Braun, who also is planning to run.

Neither Davis nor Meeks referred to the selection process Sunday but both said they would be unifiers if elected to replace Mayor Daley, who is not seeking re-election in February.

Davis

TRIBUNE

Davis, 69, said he would bridge the gap between the city's wealthy and struggling communities.

"I will be the mayor for all of Chicago," he said at a rally in the morning at the Hotel Allegro across the street from City Hall.

Davis' announcement began with an invocation and some of his 200 supporters gathered in the hotel ballroom engaged in a call and response as Davis and others spoke.

Meeks turned it up a notch with a highly choreographed announcement Sunday evening at the UIC Forum that mirrored the productions at his Salem Baptist Church. A seven-piece band played and hundreds of supporters waved campaign signs that read, "Leadership for change, Meeks for Mayor."

Introduced by Andy McKenna, the former chairman of the Illinois Republican Party, Meeks touched on the city's struggling economy and crime but seized on his pet issue—public education. He long has advocated revamping the city's education system, promoting vouchers for inner-city students and changing how schools are funded.

Meeks also said he had the support of the business community, a group that so far has come out strong for former White House Chief of Staff Rahm Emanuel, who Saturday announced he is running for mayor. Meeks' campaign said his campaign finance co-chairman would be ComEd chief executive Frank Clark.

Former Chicago Board of Education President Gery Chico and City Clerk Miguel del Valle also are prepping mayoral bids.

Daley: Ricketts should weigh options

Mayor Daley said Saturday the Ricketts family might need to look at a different way to fund improvements at Wrigley Field than relying on state-issued bonds that would be paid using ticket-tax revenue from the ballpark.

Chef Wildermuth dies at 46

Paul Wildermuth, 46, the acclaimed chef who specialized in contemporary Asian cuisine and formerly cooked at the restaurants Opera, Red Light, and Saiko, collapsed Saturday night and died of coronary atherosclerosis, according to family.

Unidentified body found in Washington Park

The body of an unidentified woman was found on a Washington Park street Sunday morning on the South Side, Chicago police said. The Cook County medical examiner's office said the woman, believed to be in her 30s, is a trauma victim.

Inspector would oversee 4 transit agencies

The state's executive inspector general would serve as watchdog over all four Chicago-area mass transit agencies, according to new legislation expected to be introduced in Springfield this week.

Teen climbs to 103rd floor of Willis Tower

Fourteen-year-old Michael McCarthy, who was born without legs, climbed stairs to the 103rd floor of the Willis Tower on Sunday as one of about 2,500 climbers who participated in SkyRise Chicago to raise funds for The Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago.

5 killed in motorcycle-car crash

8 EL CENTRO, IMPERIAL COUNTY, Calif. Five people were killed and six others seriously injured when a car struck a group of 12 motorcycles on a California desert highway Saturday.

"Of my 23 years on the department, it was the most devastating scene I've been to and I've seen a lot of fatal accidents," said Deeann Goudie, a spokeswoman for the California Highway Patrol.

Police are searching for the car, which left the scene of the afternoon accident.

Goudie said they got a 911 call from one of the motorcyclists.

The motorcycles were on a highway in El Centro, Imperial County, just east of San Diego, when a gold Honda Civic tried to pass them, police said.

Goudie said the Honda passed the motorcycles, but a Dodge Avenger swerving to avoid hitting the Honda struck the motorcycles head on.

Four motorcyclists and a passenger in the Dodge Avenger died on the scene. Five of the six people injured were in serious condition, Goudie said.

"The gold Honda Civic left the scene without stopping and police want to talk with that driver," Goudie said. "We're looking for a 1995-2000 model year gold Honda Civic."

The bikers are part of the Saddle Tramps Motorcycle group in Lakeside, Calif. They were taking a casual ride on their Harley Davidsons to celebrate the group's 10th anniversary.

Pre-winter snow rocks Minnesota

9 EDEN PRAIRIE, Minn. While winter's start remains more than a month away, much of Minnesota and Wisconsin were under a winter storm warning Saturday, with some areas seeing almost a foot of snow.

As early as 10:30 a.m., 11 inches of snow had fallen in Eden Prairie, Minn., the National Weather Service reported.

Other Minnesota communities had seen 10 inches by midday, including New Hope, Amboy, Mankato and Montgomery, while parts of Minneapolis were blanketed by at least nine inches of snow.

In some areas, an inch of snow was falling an hour.

"Even though we get this every single year, for whatever reason, the first snow of the year appears to make everyone forget how to drive in snow," said Drew Gordon, of Eagan, Minn. "So it's always a huge, huge mess."

Team returns to first place with victory over Vikings, Favre

Chicago Tribune

The Bears gained a tie for first place and effectively squashed the Minnesota Vikings' attempt to enter the NFC North title chase with a convincing 27-13 victory Sunday at Soldier Field in front of 59,834 fans.

Jay Cutler passed for three touchdowns and Devin Hester recorded 147 yards in kick returns to stifle the Vikings in Brett Favre's likely final appearance at Soldier Field.

The Bears improved to 6-3 with the victory, and the Vikings fell to 3-6 as Favre was intercepted three times. The Bears are 3-0 in the division and beat the Packers 20-17 in their head-to-head meeting.

"We're in first place in our division, and that's our goal," said Bears coach Lovie Smith. "This was a big game. In order for us to hopefully be the champs of the division, you have to beat the [defending] champs, so it was a big win for us today."

Minnesota quarterback Favre knows just how big it was.

"We've got to find a way to turn it around and all of the cliches that go with it, as you expect," said Favre, who may have played his final game at Soldier Field. "We've got to pick it up. ... Can this team make the playoffs? Yes, I will say yes to that. Will we make the playoffs? I have no idea."

Embattled Minnesota coach Brad Childress said he didn't feel as if his team quit on him Sunday, as has been suggested in various media reports in the past week.

"I sure didn't sense that," he said. "I thought we had a pretty good spark about us early on. I didn't sense lack of effort."

Cutler hit tight end Kellen Davis on a 19-yard TD pass on a third-and-one play with 8:37 remaining for the final margin.

"Offensively, I felt like we had control of the game most of the time," Smith said. "We had a few turnovers that knocked us back a little bit, but for the most part we did about what we set out to do."

Robbie Gould's second field goal of the day, this one from 32 yards out with 5:26 left in the third, had put the Bears ahead 20-13. It was set up by Hester's 68-yard kickoff return to the Vikings' 34.

Buoyed by an inspiring comeback victory over the Arizona Cardinals, the Vikings felt optimistic behind Favre. It was Favre's 294th consecutive regular-season start and his 318th straight, including playoffs.

Afterward, however, he talked as if he was saying goodbye to Chicago and the Bears.

"As I told Brian Urlacher, Lance Briggs, Tommie Harris ... those guys after the game ... it's been a pleasure," Favre said. "Not really, but you know what I mean. I have a tremendous amount of respect for those guys, the guys I've played against all my years playing here."

bear hunting

Good Bears, bad Bears and hurting Bears this week.

YUMMI BEAR Devin Hester

Looks like the old Hester is back. Besides scoring off a Jay Cutler pass, Hester returned kicks and punts like he used to, putting the Bears in good field position all day.

POO BEAR Devin Aromashodu

One catch for nine yards. That is all.

GRISLY BEAR

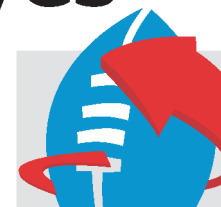

For the briefest of moments at the end of the third quarter, Bears fans feared the worst when it appeared Hester was injured. All indications were that it was not serious. Whew.

Hail yes

How many times have you seen a Hail Mary work? About as often as we get to celebrate professional sports titles in Chicago, right?

Jacksonville made it work Sunday, though, against Houston. With the game tied at 24 and 3 seconds left, Jaguars quarterback David Garrard hurled a pass 50 yards to the end zone. Texans defensive back Glover Quin was waiting for it and batted it down. The problem is, he batted it into the hands of wide receiver Mike Thomas for a TD.

Jaguars win. Just like they drew it up.

GETTY IMAGES

OH YES!

Fred Jackson

The running back (above) helped immensely in the Bills' first win of the season, running for 133 yards and a score and catching six passes for 37 yards and another touchdown.

OH NO!

Peyton Manning

The usual dependable Manning (right) didn't throw a touchdown pass Sunday, much to the dismay of fantasy football players everywhere. Indy still won, though.

UH-OH!

Chad Pennington, Chad Henne

Both Miami quarterbacks were knocked out during the team's win Sunday. To make matters worse, the South Florida Sun Sentinel reported both are out for the season. Just in time for the Bears on Thursday. So sad.

1	What's the bright side to the Bulls and Blackhawks going on their long circus road trip?	For a limited time only, your favorite barstool will not be occupied by a guy with hockey hair.	That smell in the UC won't be the Hawks stinkin' it up at home, just elephant poop.	It doesn't matter, the UC will still host the same number of net wins.	The elephants smell better than what the Hawks leave on the ice!	The only clowns in the building will be actual clowns.
2	What did Brett Favre hear from Bears players on the field Sunday?	"Hey, how's the rash? Youuuuuu know which one I'm talking about."	"Hey 'pic 6,' she mighta called you back if it was a 'pic 10.' Just sayin."	"We'd like to get you some gold-plated retirement crocs. What size are you?"	"We'll text you pictures from our victory celebration."	"You must have a mega-zoom on that camera you use."
3	What's your opinion of throw-back jerseys?	Are we talking a '95 Northwestern football jersey or an '01-'02 Dalibor Bagaric Bulls jersey?	I like my jerseys like my men, well-aged and rich (with tradition).	Throw them back!	The Bears are 2-0 in them. Can we lend them to the Blackhawks?	Taste great, less filling.
4	What will it be like with ESPN's "GameDay" crew at Wrigley on Saturday?	Lee Corso putting on a Willie the Wildcat head will be the crowning moment of my life.	Pat Fitzgerald's gonna ask Erin Andrews if she's doing a football game or a modeling shoot.	With Joe Morgan gone? A happy, happy day.	Concerts, hockey, and now football. All more enjoyable Wrigley events than watching Cubs.	As soon as Erin Andrews shows her face, it'll be like a frat party gone awry.
5	Tiger Woods' last round was his best of the year. What's that mean for his future?	Goodbye, VH1 reality show stars. Hello, TLC reality show stars.	Ladies of the world, gird your loins. Tiger's back on the prowl ...	Female golf groupies still will want him for his—ahem—talent.	A more peaceful Thanksgiving than last year. Guaranteed!	He's out of the woods, for now. Just stay away from Vegas, Tiger.

CIRCUS TRICKS

What might await the Bulls, Hawks on their road trips?

RedEye

About this time every year, Bulls and Blackhawks fans collectively start wringing their hands about this "circus trip," the teams' road trips as the circus takes over the United Center for two weeks. This year, a lot is at stake for both teams, but for different reasons. The Hawks are reeling and could be dealt a huge blow with a disastrous showing. The Bulls, on the other hand, are on a hot streak and could return to Chicago as a beast of the East if they keep it going. Unlike years past, when it was almost certain the Bulls would do terribly on the road, it's hard to say exactly what to expect from each team. So, here's RedEye's guide to how fans should look at the trip.

Bulls

Current record: 5-3.
Circus road trip games: 7

Blackhawks

Current record: 9-9-2
Circus road trip games: 6

Best-case scenario

Win all seven. Improbable, but if they pulled it off, they'd likely have the best record in the league.

Win all six. Highly unlikely. But would be a huge boost.

Acceptable

Win four to six. Houston, Phoenix, Denver and Sacramento are ripe for the picking. Even four wins would put them at 9-6 after the trip.

Win three to five games. Would actually be an improvement over the recent home record and keep the team around .500.

Worrisome

Win one to three. A sub-.500 trip would cast doubt on the team's ability to be a contender.

Win one or two. Would put the Hawks in a huge hole.

Worst-case scenario

Lose all seven. Not likely. Don't even think about it.

Lose all six. Not out of the question. Would come back to haunt them come playoff time.

» Hey Chicago, get ready for Chris, Lee, Kirk and Desmond: ESPN's "GameDay" is coming to town for the historic Northwestern vs. Illinois game Saturday at Wrigley Field. "GameDay" first aired in 1987 and this will mark the second time Northwestern has played host to the show.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! Scorpio

Oct. 24-Nov. 21

Things are getting weird, thanks to Uranus. Maybe your lover has decided to seriously become a vampire. Or perhaps your honey is considering a "Sister Wives" arrangement and has proposed to three other women.

Sagittarius Nov. 22-Dec. 21

You won't take no for an answer as two planets increase your selfishness. If your honey doesn't want to see you every night, you'll look elsewhere for sensual entertainment.

Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19

The moon is reminding you that there are two sides to every story. Maybe your lover really did work late. Perhaps your girlfriend really did have a waxing mishap.

Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 18

You need to pay attention to your intuition because Neptune is increasing your tendency to be telepathic. You'll pick up on that sexy friend's lusty thoughts about you.

Pisces Feb. 19-March 20

You'll hit a sexy groove as Jupiter increases your mojo. You'll find it easy to flirt with strangers and impress coworkers, clients and distant acquaintances.

Aries March 21-April 19

You're in one of your revenge-seeking moods. Pluto has you convinced that you deserve justice for those past slights.

Taurus April 20-May 20

You'll become the victim of a missed connection as Mercury puts a monkey wrench in your schedule. You'll miss that blind date with the gorgeous rich guy. Oops.

Gemini May 21-June 21

As Venus goes direct, you're hitting your sexual stride. You'll reduce your lover to a pile of happy sighs in the bedroom.

Cancer June 22-July 22

Don't fret over an old relationship that always was stressing you out. Life is too short to be suffering all the time. Jupiter says let go of people who don't offer you positive energy.

Leo July 23-Aug. 22

Your local chapter of the People Who Like to Dress Up as Fuzzy Animals Association may ask you to attend their yearly holiday party. Pluto says don't dismiss odd invites.

Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22

Jupiter is still creating problems for you in the business and money department. Just focus on having fun with friends.

Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23

A moon opposition is reminding you that you're still bummed out about what one of your lovers did to you. It's OK to get mad about this stuff.

Lower Back Pain?

Are You or Someone You Know Suffering From Lower Back Pain?

Northwestern University is seeking volunteers who have lower back pain in order to determine where the pain is recognized in the brain. Participants will also be evaluated to determine why pain goes away for some people while it remains for others. This is a 12 month study consisting of 1 visit at the Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago and 5 MRI scans at Northwestern Memorial Hospital's Olson Pavilion. All visits will take place in downtown Chicago.

Eligible participants must:

- Be 18 years or older
- Have a history of lower back pain which began 4-16 weeks ago with pain radiating into the buttocks or legs
- Be able to undergo a MRI (no pacemakers, metallic implants, or spinal implants)

Please call 312-503-3181 for more information on how you can take part in this research study.

Showtime's 'Shameless' show plug

about last night

LUIS ARROYAVE
larroyave@tribune.com

GOT A TIP?

Do you have a hot tip on a celebrity sighting in Chicago? E-mail Luis or tweet him @luisarroyave.

Realizing that she had accidentally spit part of her Rice Krispies treat on my knee, Emmy Rossum—on her lunch break from shooting Showtime's "Shameless" in Lawndale on Wednesday—briefly stopped what she was saying to co-star William H. Macy and turned her attention toward me.

"I'm still in character," she said.

Rossum's character, Fiona, is the eldest of six children in a dysfunctional working class family. Because it's a single parent household—and the one parent, Frank (Macy), is an unemployed alcoholic—Fiona is a mother figure for the hard-partying Gallagher family.

"It's raw and jagged and more real," said Rossum about her role later that afternoon in her trailer. "It's what I always wanted to do. I'm channeling my inner ballsy-ness. I think I'm becoming ballsier by playing her."

"Shameless" is based in Chicago but shot almost entirely in L.A. Exterior scenes were filmed last week in Lawndale and Bronzeville and Milton Lee Olive Park to give the series, which premieres Jan. 9, an authentic look.

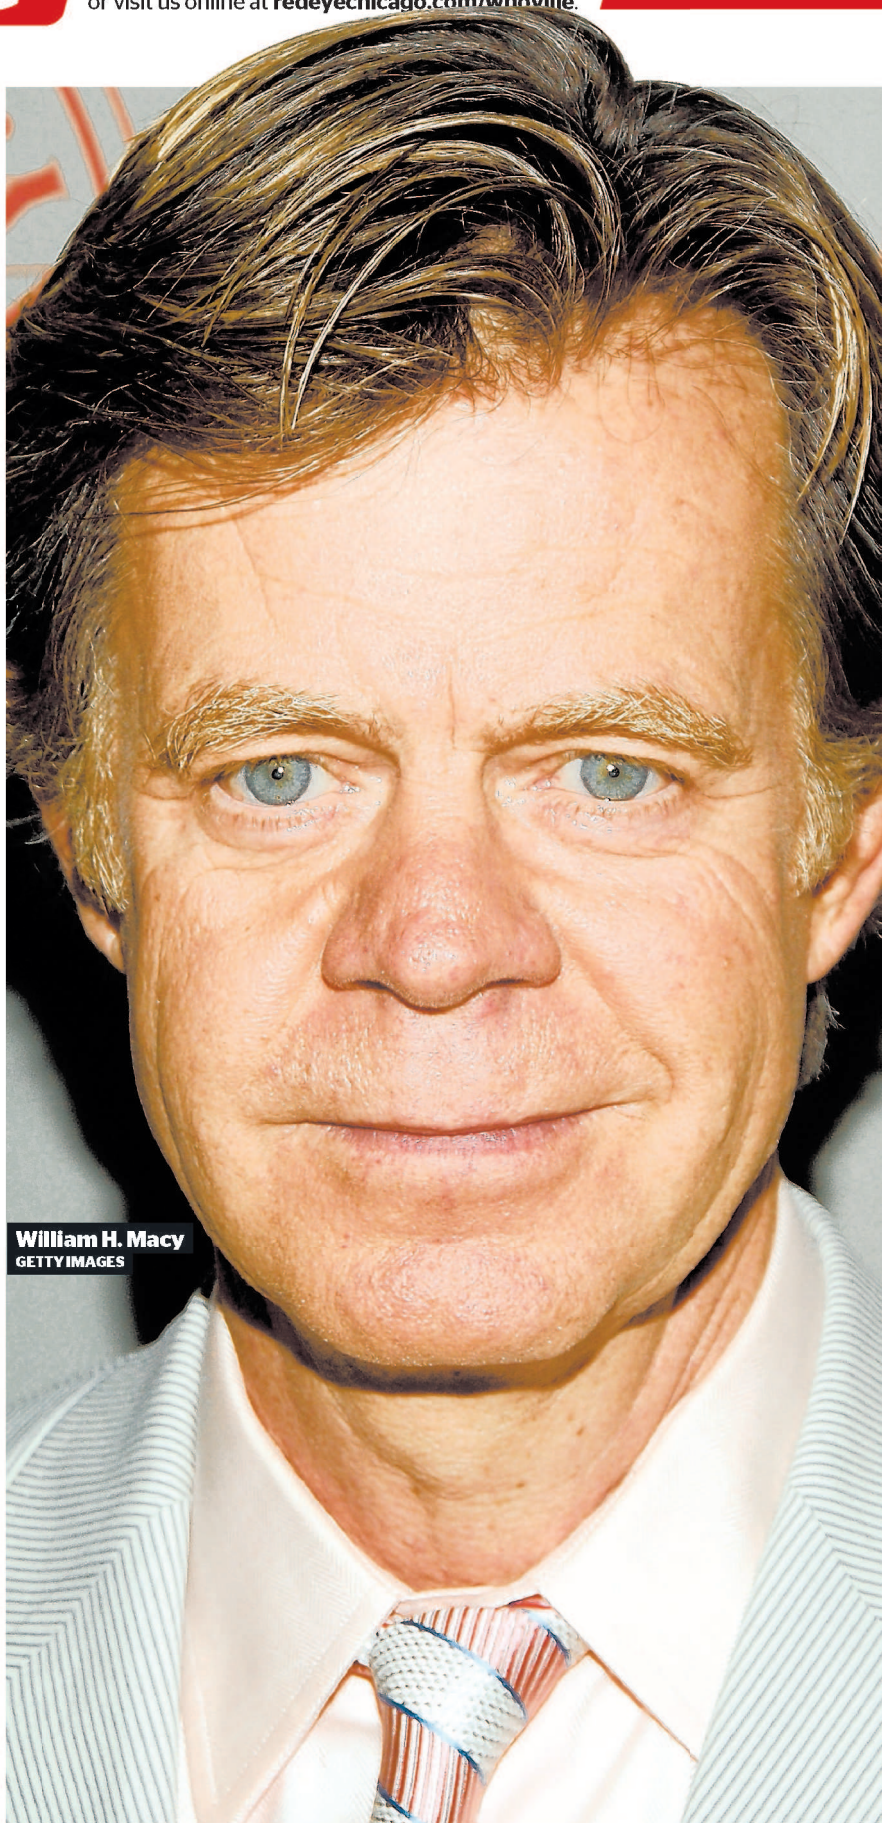

"We did the pilot here in February," said Macy, sitting on a parked golf cart. "The plan is to do two trips per season. We'll come back in January."

Macy has appeared in films such as "Fargo," which earned him a best supporting actor Oscar nomination, "Air Force One" and "Seabiscuit" while also dabbling in TV. He appeared on "ER" and the short-lived "Sports Night" and has been itching to return to TV.

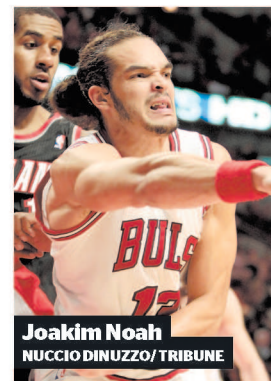

"I've been looking for a while," said Macy. "Once I decided I wanted to try my hand at a series, I read a bunch of them. ['Shameless'] has got this incredible heart to it. I don't know how they pull it off, but you love this family at the end of every episode."

The Gallagher children are seen drinking, smoking pot, having sex in the kitchen and stealing from UNICEF—and that's just the pilot episode. For the role of Frank, Macy is required to act intoxicated in just about every one of his scenes. Macy grew out his hair and a short beard for the role to give Frank an unkempt look.

"I'm sort of digging it," Macy said about his look. "My family keeps asking 'When are you going to shave? When are you going to cut your hair?' I say 'I'm hoping it's going to be eight years from now.'"

Al Piemonte Ford offers travel incentive.

To make it more affordable for shoppers to meet face to face with Al Piemonte Ford's credit department, the dealership has added a gift card incentive. Now customers who visit the Credit Department will be rewarded with a $10 Target Gift Card.

Finance personnel will be on hand to meet with them and access their ability to get financing for a new or used vehicle. Ed Dixon, "The Credit Coach" from the dealership, sees this as another step in making the customer experience "friendly and inviting".

"We recognize that sometimes people travel a considerable distance to come to our dealership and we want to reward them for their effort!"

Shoppers can start the process by calling a 24 hour toll free number dedicated to financing. The number is 1-800-NEXT CREDIT or 1-800-639-8273.

Amount that "Megamind" earned in theaters over the weekend, giving it top spot at the box office for a second week.

Johnson

Jessica Simpson (right) is giving marriage another try.

The singer is engaged to former NFL player Eric

Johnson, her rep confirmed Sunday to people.com. Simpson was famously married to former boy-bander Nick Lachey, and their life as a couple became the MTV reality hit "Newlyweds." They split in 2005. Simpson's news, coincidentally, came days after Lachey's engagement to Vanessa Minnillo made news.

Angelina's swan song?

Those who value their eardrums should not, under any circumstances, listen to Angelina Pivarnick's (above) new song. A sample of the "Jersey Shore" outcast's rap single leaked over the weekend, ew.com reports. The 50-second clip features such delightful rhymes as "I shop ... and shop ... I just can't stop." MTV PHOTO

Rent like a rock star

Want to live like a celeb? We'll now's your chance—if you have a few grand lying around. Billy Corgan is trying to sell his vintage

Gold Coast condo, but he's having little luck getting his asking price (currently a cool $3.55 million.) So, the Tribune reports, you can rent the 3,700 square-foot unit—which takes up a full floor in a converted mansion built in 1892—for $10,000 a month.

'Goonies' update?

Corey Feldman (left) would totally be on board with a follow-up to "The Goonies." "I would do it if [the studio] was serious, but unfortunately they can't seem to get it together," Feldman told The Hollywood Reporter. A sequel to the 1985 classic would be in the very, very distant future, he said.

Presidential cameo

What do Zach Galifianakis and former President Bill Clinton have in common? For one thing, they're both appearing in "The Hangover 2." Seriously. Clinton shot a cameo for the movie Saturday in Bangkok, his rep tells people.com. No word on details.
